Information Lifecycle Management Conference Coming to Indy

Strategic Data Management announced they are hosting an Information Lifecycle Management (ILM) conference free to qualified IT professionals. The day-long conference provides an in-depth look at this standards-based approach to automating data operations based on business requirements and business processes. The program will be held on February 26 from 8:30am – 5pm at the Junior Achievement Conference Center located at 7435 N. Keystone Avenue.

The program is designed for IT professionals responsible for managing critical information technology data or storage infrastructure, including: CIO's, IT Directors, IT Managers, Security professionals, Compliance Managers, and Data Management and Storage professionals. It includes both large and small group presentations, as well as time for networking and informal conversation with peers. Bob "Mister" Rogers, CTO and founder of Application Matrix will be the keynote speaker sharing his experiences from more than 25 years directing storage, systems, and performance management activities.

Other topics include:

Partnering with Strategic Data management to deliver this event are industry leaders CommVault, Xiotech, Credant, Spectra, Clearview and Double-Take Software.

"We are thrilled to bring a conference of this caliber to Indianapolis," said James Jordan, President of Strategic Data Management. "The discussions and presentations will provide attendees insight into the latest trends in storage, virtualization, and Security. These topics will be relevant for IT professionals and business leaders alike.

There is no cost to attend, but seating is limited so be sure to register early. To reserve your space, or learn more about the program click here or call us at 317-219-0428 ext 1094.
